Learning something new can energize a group, build confidence and create positive change. Playing the Blues is designed to be an uplifting, team-building event that brings your team together for a blues harmonica jam session, where they are the stars. In just two hours, your team will learn to play the blues harmonica like the masters!

TeamBonding's fun and friendly instructors teach you everything you need to know to get started playing the blues; the fun begins when each member of your team receives a harmonica. Within minutes, participants will be playing a real blues song with their team, amazed at how good it sounds! The grand finale features your team showing what they've got; they'll perform an original blues song that they've created for an audience!

At the end of the program, each member of the team will realize that they can actually do things they weren't aware that they could do. It's an excellent way to bring co-workers together, and to put passion, confidence and fun back to the workplace.
