Crescendo How It Works

- Inspire unity and cooperation by transforming your team into a string orchestra in less than one hour

Approach: Collaborative

Program Type: Music & Rhythm Activities

Timeframe: 60 minutes

Numbers: 8 – Unlimited

Availability: Worldwide

Overview

- Crescendo's unique approach generates amazing results even when participants have no previous musical experience!
- Instructors assign team members one of two classical string instruments: the violin or the viola
- Then, they quickly teach them the basics of playing and learning their part in a custom-made composition
- At the end, with the accompaniment of a bespoke backing track, the two sections make beautiful music together

Positivity & Wellbeing

The Element Of Surprise!

- Crescendo is best positioned after a comfort break allowing time for our team to set the room
- Participants return to conference and are completely surprised to discover a vast array of classical instruments

Build A
Supportive
Culture

- Participants form three groups and perform in sequence
- At this point, teams can be encouraged to display some light-hearted competition and show off their newly acquired musical skills
- Delegates at each table share the skills learned to help and support each other

00:45 – 00:55

Finale

- After a quick introduction to performance etiquette, all tables play the piece in total unison along with our bespoke backing track
- Participants are amazed by the spectacular results of working together in synergy
- The whole group is congratulated on achieving their common goal

A group of people, mostly women, are seated at round tables in a restaurant or event space, playing violins. They are dressed in semi-formal attire. The room has a rustic brick wall and wooden beams. In the foreground, a man in a white shirt and dark vest is playing a violin. A woman in a black dress stands nearby. The scene is lit with warm, ambient lighting.

Learning Outcomes

- Few individuals can learn to play classical music in under an hour, but a team of people working in synergy can!
- In today's ever changing business climate it is vital that team members are able to quickly adapt their skills, to maintain the effectiveness of their team
- Crescendo offers an inspiring platform to practice new skills, improve communications, cement lasting bonds and embed positive behaviours
